I'm sorry I missed you earlier.

I'll give you a call shortly but please see the below statement.

Please attribute to Tim Mander:

"I welcome this next critical step in the process towards disproving Labor's attacks, and I look forward to Labor being held accountable for their baseless smear campaign in relation to my personal life.

"I referred this matter myself and provided information as requested, so it could be proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that I have followed the right processes and all appropriate declarations and disclosures have been made.

"I have total confidence this will be resolved and Labor's attacks disproved, however, I have no intention of this becoming a distraction to the important work of the Government and so this afternoon I advised the Premier I am standing aside today as Minister while this is being sorted."

Hey Meg,

Not sure if you were also in NZ with the Minister or when he might be travelling back but give me a call when you can.

- will the Minister step aside/down from cabinet in light of the AFP investigation into possible breach/es of electoral law?

- why/why not?

Thanks,

CTPI

Hi all,

Please see below statement from the AEC, confirming Mr Mander has been referred to the AFP for investigation for potential criminal offences under the criminal code relating to his voter enrolment.

Will Mr Mander stand down from Cabinet while the investigation is ongoing?

Deputy Opposition Leader Cameron Dick said the Premier's integrity was on the line if he failed to hold Mr Mander to account.

"The Premier must stand Tim Mander down today," he said.

"How can Queenslanders trust this minister when he couldn't answer the most basic question: 'where do you live?'"

"The Premier said if governments give up on integrity, they give up on governing for Queensland, so if the Premier doesn't stand Tim Mander down today, then he's given up on governing with integrity for Queensland."

Labor in 2017 told then Energy Minister Mark Bailey to stand aside while the Crime and Corruption Commission investigated his use of his private email account for government business.

Mr Dick said Labor had held itself to the standard demanded of the Crisafulli government today.

"We're calling on the Premier just to hold his ministers to the same standard he's demanded consistently of everybody else," he said.

"He should be stood down today, and he should be stood down for as long as it takes for this to be concluded."

The AEC confirmed it had referred Mr Mander's matter to the AFP on May 19.

It is unclear when the government became aware of the federal investigation.

Mr Dick said Queenslanders should have been told as soon as either Mr Mander or Premier Crisafulli were informed.

"If you're not properly enrolled in Australia, it's a crime, it's a breach of the Commonwealth Criminal Code, and you go to jail for up to 12 months," he said.

"It's not a minor thing ... it's a crime."

"So this is a very serious matter, and it's a very serious thing. I think, for the Australian Electoral Commission to refer this to the federal police."

In a statement, an AFP spokesperson said it had received a report from the AEC on May 19, and an update would be provided "at an appropriate time".
